

I am concerned about LPFM taking priority over existing translator service. I am especially concerned about how this will effect the broadcasting of K-LOVE, which has substantial listeners around the United States. I, being one of these listeners, have been a listener and supporter of K-LOVE for three years now and listen predominantly to this station. This station is a wholesome and uplifting broadcast which exists to help people become more productive members of society. If this station was replaced by another signal, I would be deeply saddened to have lost such an uplifting station. There are hundreds of thousands of other listeners who daily tune to this station over translators and I fear much encouragement to myself and my community would be lost is it is replaced. I believe it is in the public interest to allow translator service to survive as it now exists.
